

Temporary power distribution box manufacturer in Democratic Republic of Congo

Article Overview

Congo Energy and Congo Cables & Transformers are key manufacturers and suppliers of electrical distribution solutions in the DRC, capable of providing temporary power distribution boxes.

Congo Energy

Congo Energy is a Congolese company specializing in electrical infrastructure for industries, including the design, production, and installation of bespoke energy solutions . They are certified partners of Schneider Electric and distributors of PRAMAC generator sets, which positions them to supply customized temporary power distribution boxes for industrial, commercial, and construction projects. Their services include feasibility studies, installation supervision, and after-sales support, ensuring reliable and safe deployment of temporary power systems .

Congo Cables & Transformers

Established in 2022 and based in Lubumbashi, Congo Cables & Transformers manufactures and supplies a wide range of power solutions, including transformers, copper and aluminum conductors, and other electrical components . Their state-of-the-art facility allows them to produce customized power distribution equipment, which can be adapted for temporary installations in industrial, commercial, or event-based applications. They emphasize safety, performance, and reliability, making them a strong option for temporary power distribution needs .

Additional Considerations

While companies like Dynamic SARL and ENGELEC-RDC Sarl provide electrical hardware and industrial equipment, their focus is more on distribution and procurement rather than manufacturing of temporary power distribution boxes . For specialized temporary power solutions, Congo Energy and Congo Cables & Transformers are the most relevant local manufacturers.
